Liquid Assets, a ninety-minute documentary, tells the story of essential infrastructure systems: water, wastewater, and stormwater. These systems — some in the ground for more than 100 years — provide a critical public health function and are essential for economic development and growth. Largely out of sight and out of mind, these aging systems have not been maintained, and some estimates suggest this is the single largest public works endeavor in our nation's history.

The American Society of Civil Engineers is hosting a free community outreach event showcasing the Liquid Assets documentary followed by the results of the Virginia Infrastructure Report Card with respect to water, wastewater, and stormwater infrastructure. The event will be held on Tuesday evening, April 20, 2010, as part of Earth Week.

5:30pm	Public Education Reception
6:25pm	Introduction to the Documentary
